

And His Stomach Is All Right

Thousands with Poor Teeth Have Good Digestion by Using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets After Meals.

Whether or not we eat too much, is a matter for individual judgment. Benjamin Franklin tried the experiment of living on a handful of raisins, but he discovered that the quantity thereof, but one of digestion and assimilation. The normal person eats heartily, and with keen enjoyment. That is because his mind doesn't anticipate stomach trouble. And if he does have an attack of sour stomach or indigestion he knows that the use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets give quick relief.

A Gentleman of the "Old School" Who Keeps Up With the Times.

Many people have poor teeth, weak gums, sore teeth and other bothersome troubles that prevent a vigorous mastication of food. And instead of eating soft, mushy food that palls on the palate, they go in for those heavy dishes, the very odor of which starts the saliva and makes the stomach fairly reel with anticipation.

This is not a natural condition. Anything else borders upon the indigestion which fosters indigestion and chronic drapage of the stomach.

It may be safely said that it should not be a question of diet or kind of food, or teeth or even any of the reflexes which are supposed to have their influence in deranging the stomach. It is simply a matter of supplying the stomach and digestive organs with those known assistants such as pepsin, and hydrochloric acid, both of which have a direct and powerful action upon the contents of the stomach.

One grain of a single ingredient in Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest two grains of food. This saves your stomach and gives it the rest it needs. All muscles require occasional rest if they are ever over-taxed. The stomach has no exception to this rule.

Try a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and you will wonder how you ever got along without them. They are sold at 10 cents by all druggists everywhere.—Adv.

SERGEANTS LOSE TEMPORARY RANKS

Returning from Instruction Work With Militia, Many of Them Become Only Privates.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 4.—Returning to infantry regiments after two years of service as sergeant instructors with the national guard regiments of the country, nearly 100 sergeants of the regular army must take the rank of a private upon rejoining their regiments.

Adj. Gen. Andrews states that while the reducing of able and efficient sergeant instructors to the rank of a private seems unjust, it is necessary under the present law governing the detailing of men as sergeant instructors to allow them to keep the rank of sergeant after completing their detail.

In many instances men thus detailed were privates when they entered the service, and therefore, will not suffer any loss of rank on returning to their regiments. Many of them were excellent sergeants. To these men the return to regimental duty means a complete loss of their rank. However, it is believed that some way will be found by war department officials to give these men a preference when there are vacancies to be filled in the rank of sergeant in any regiments of the regular establishment.

Only one infantryman has returned to Fort Bliss from the national guard instruction work. He is Sergt. Hobbs, of company M, 23d Infantry. He has been stationed in the north for two years and will return to his regiment and retain the rank of sergeant. He had when he was detailed to the special service.

RHEUMATISM URIC ACID CAUSES IT—S.S.S. CURES IT

Every variety of Rheumatism is caused by an excess of uric acid in the blood; the different forms of the disease depending on whether this uric acid settles in the nerves, muscles or joints. In Sciatica it is the nerves which are attacked, the muscular form shows the muscles to be the seat of trouble, while manifestations of articular Rheumatism are evidence that the joints are being diseased. To cure Rheumatism the uric acid must be removed from the blood; the circulation must be made pure. This cannot be accomplished with external applications; such treatment may furnish temporary relief from the pain, but it does not reach the producing cause. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism of every variety and form because it purifies the blood. It goes down into the circulation, neutralizes the acids and dissolves the irritating deposits which are pressing on the sensitive nerves and tissues, and producing pain. Whether your case of Rheumatism be acute or chronic S. S. S. is the medicine you need; it will cure you and at the same time build up the entire system by its fine vegetable tonic effects. "Be Natural and You Will Be Beautiful," Says Pretty Miss Alice Brady

MISS ALICE BRADY, STAR OF "LITTLE WOMEN," AT THE PLAYHOUSE.

By Margaret Hubbard Ayer.

"LITTLE WOMEN" is sweet, and so is Alice Brady. Alice Brady plays Mrs. March, the eldest of the dear, delightful March girls.

Miss Alice is the daughter of manager Brady, as every one knows. But I think that Miss Alice is showing the world that she could have succeeded even if she had had no connection with the theatrical world, for nobody in any of the companies in which she has been playing works harder than the manager's daughter, nor has risen more legitimately on her own merits.

Behind the stage Miss Brady, who is still in her teens, is a pretty, winsome young girl, with a very animated face, big, brown eyes and an interesting and interested expression.

It was my duty to have out that weather beaten question, "What do you do to preserve your health and beauty?" and I took it out, dished it off, propped it up, and presented it in the best light and to the best of my ability.

"Oh," said Miss Alice, as she opened her eyes very wide and looked scared. "What do you want me to say? I don't know anything about health and beauty. I've never done anything about either in my life. Why, I do all the things that one oughtn't to do. I eat what I want, and as much as I want, and when I want, and I just love cream sodas."

"But one thing is certain; you can't tell what kind of a girl is going to look beautiful on the stage. I've noticed that the really beautiful girls, with classic features and all that, look quite insignificant when they're made up in front of the footlights. Personally I think beauty is a matter of expression and coloring quite as much as of perfect outline. I love exquisite coloring of hair and complexion and eyes."

"Of course, for you never get the right combinations if you change the color that Nature gave. I like faces that are full of expression, and I am afraid I don't consider the chin-doll beauty very fascinating."

"And speaking of dolls, have you noticed that all the new dolls have real faces like children? Not like the old-fashioned dolls, who are always impossibly beautiful."

"Children Right." "It seems that children nowadays prefer dolls that have expression, and I think that the children are right. Probably it means that we are getting tired of the ideal of doll-like beauty, which lacks expression and intelligence. Certainly it is significant when little children turn away from the beautiful French dolls and take the funny life-like doll babies, whose faces are so full of expression that it seems as if they could almost talk."

"Little Bobbie's Pa." By WILLIAM F. KIRK. He Doesn't Know Anything About Cows and Calves.

M A & me found out yesterday that Pa didn't know anything about cows & calves. Pa did talk a lot about them when he was all the time in New York, but when he brought Ma & me up in the country where there is regular cows & calves, it was different.

He told Ma & me last night that he was going to take us up to Bob Hardie's farm at Doseco. Talk about cows, Pa said, you will see them cows. Ma & Marshall Dunn is going over to the farm & two grade dairy men will be there besides Mister Lindsay & Mister Billy Dick. What Mr. Dunn & the other two men want to look at the farm, all Ma did was to say that she was going to look at the big barn where Mister Hardie had all his cows. Ma was telling how he had rode the range out in Arizona & herded different kinds of cattle. She said she didn't know a cow that had horns four feet from tip to tip.

Those cows of mine are different, said Mister Hardie. They are all blooded stock, thoroughbred.

Maybe you only think they are thoroughbred, said Ma, but if they are or if they ain't I can tell at a glance.

I shall be very glad to have your opinion, said Mister Hardie. We folks up here always like to learn things from city people. You see we don't get the same chance to get around that way. We go along in our little quiet way, while city people like you have a chance to mingle with other

THE HUSBAND QUESTION The Widow Becomes Disgusted With Blanchard, Her Aged Suitor.

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER.

WITHOUT giving Henry Blanchard time to address any of the company except Helen, John Robbins bore his wife's uncle into a side room—where, one may remark incidentally, there was no carpet on the floor—to direct him of his dripping garments. Meanwhile, the hostess summoned a servant to wipe from the rug clinging to the door that had streamed from the new-comer's coat and umbrella, and even from his hat. He, however, carried his wet umbrella out upon the veranda, laughingly refusing when Robert Maynard would have taken it from him.

"No," he said, "I will not let anyone but some member of the household repair my hat. I have the hat, I have the hat." "Poor old man," he continued, lowering his voice. "I cannot imagine what has changed his usual hatred of water. He is a man of this weather. As a rule, if it rains, he stays home. He does not like rural resorts anyway, and in his old age he has come here for a day and night in the worst storm of the season."

"You fail to remember the attraction your home is to him," remarked Paul Maynard.

"Indeed, it is not that," laughed Helen. "He is not so much attracted to the place as you are. He is attracted to the fact that you are here. He is attracted to the fact that you are here."

"What an absurd thing to say," he said. "He is attracted to the fact that you are here. He is attracted to the fact that you are here."

PLAN ESTABLISHING AN ORPHANAGE HERE

Local Catholics May Start Movement For Home For Little Ones.

Local Catholics are discussing the establishment of an orphanage home in El Paso. While no definite action has been decided upon and no plans made for the immediate beginning of the plan, it is understood that the plan is being favorably considered.

The recent destruction of the St. John's orphanage in San Antonio, one of the best cities in the state for the establishment of a home similar to that one.

It is possible that the Sisters of Charity, who are the foremost workers in this kind of institutions may organize a home in El Paso on a small scale at first, later enlarging it with the assistance of local Catholics.

In the event that such a home is started, it is understood that there would be assistance given by the whole diocese of Dallas of which El Paso is a part.

SCRIPTURE. Judges 6:11-40.

But the spirit of the Lord came upon Gideon, and he bleb the trumpet; and Abimelech was gathered after him.

And he said unto his men, throughout all Manasseh; who was also gathered after him; and he sent messengers unto Asher, and unto Zebulun, and unto Naphtali, and they came up to meet them.

And Gideon said unto God, If thou wilt save Israel by mine hand, as thou hast said:

Behold, I will put a fleece of wool in the floor; and if the dew be on the fleece only, and it be dry upon all the earth beside, then shall I know that thou wilt save Israel by mine hand, as thou hast said.

And it was so; for he rose up early on the morrow, and thrust the fleece together, and wringed the dew out of the fleece, a bowl full of water.

And Gideon said unto God, Let not thine anger be kindled against me, and I will speak but this once: let me prove, I pray thee, this one time with the fleece; let it now be dry only upon the fleece; and let there be dew upon all the ground.

And it was so the next day; for he rose up early, and thrust the fleece together, and wringed the dew out of the fleece, a bowl full of water.

And Gideon said unto God, I will not quarrel with thee; I will be as thou hast said. And he said, I will be with thee, and thou shalt smite the Midianites before thee.

And he said, I will be with thee, and thou shalt smite the Midianites before thee.

And he said, I will be with thee, and thou shalt smite the Midianites before thee.

And he said, I will be with thee, and thou shalt smite the Midianites before thee.

And he said, I will be with thee, and thou shalt smite the Midianites before thee.

And he said, I will be with thee, and thou shalt smite the Midianites before thee.

And he said, I will be with thee, and thou shalt smite the Midianites before thee.

And he said, I will be with thee, and thou shalt smite the Midianites before thee.

No Time For Sighing -- By Beatrice Fairfax

J. A. B. writes me: "I am a young man 22 years of age. I have been going with a girl for three years, and it was un-pleasant between us that we were engaged."

"We had a good many quarrels, and at last we parted. I have not seen her since. I love the girl with all my heart and soul and can't get over her. I never will. I have tried hard, but in vain. I heard she was going with another fellow and that made me feel still worse. I sometimes think I will have her at any cost."

There is a very pretty, gossamer-like theory that love's quarrels are delightful because of the certainty of their ending. I do not think a more harmful, nor a more untruthful, theory was ever evolved.

There is no quarrel in the world, between lovers, that is ever made up so completely and joyfully that no sting remains. This is so true that the things which every high-tempered person regards as his rights.

A Desperate Fix. I am sure you are willing to be, and do, all these things for your girl, and you must have her "at any cost."

A situation so desperate admits of no doubt. But, what a waste of time and while the other man steals her heart away. Go and tell her you are sorry for your unkindness and ashamed of your meanness. Now, don't say you can't say that, for you have written that you must have her "at any cost."

Take up the blame on yourself. Promise to behave better. When you have "made up" see to it there are no more misunderstandings. This having said, go and tell her, and though you spend the rest of your life fighting for it.

And that fighting must be not with your sweetheart, but with yourself.

A COMMON SENSE. Dear Miss Fairfax: I am 18 years old and am in love with a young man three years my senior. I met this young man about one year ago, but did not care for him as much then as I do now. Six months ago he became acquainted with a friend of mine and she was calling on her since.

I recently will reveal her letter to me she will discover a way to win back her wandering lover.

She says she did not care for him until he began calling on her. Her human hearts are much the same. Jealousy stirred her love into life. Use the same weapon and his love will awaken. Don't try and hope. Laugh with another man and the stray-away will return.

WHY SHOULD SHE? Dear Miss Fairfax: I am to be engaged very soon. My lady friend attended an affair, and as I did not care for dancing I arrived at 11:30 p. m. It was understood that when I came she was to sit with me the rest of the evening. A young man asked her to dance, and knowing that I would object she accepted.

The statement that you are to be engaged very soon doesn't constitute an engagement by any means. You had no right to object to an innocent dancing in the room, and you should be grateful that you had any of her company at all. She made some concessions in "giving out" a dance with you. Don't be selfish and ask more.

UTICA, N. Y., MAN CALLS SAXO SALVE "A WONDERFUL REMEDY FOR ECZEMA."

I am writing this with the hope that it may induce others who are suffering from skin affections as I have been. I have been suffering for years I suffered from eczema, and was treated by several physicians, but none seemed to relieve me from the itching. I saw an advertisement of Saxo Salve and decided to try it. The very first application brought relief, and I cannot say too much for a remedy that has cured me from eczema.—Albert E. Knepek, 309 Wagon street, Utica, N. Y.

In all forms of skin disease Saxo Salve quickly allays the terrible itching, and its antiseptic, healing properties penetrate the skin and destroy the germs of disease.
